SPECIAL DELIVERY

It had to happen: A company besides eBay started utilizing drones for delivering high-end good times. In this case, the fun in question is Champagne, being delivered by the flying robots to guests who book the elegant Alexandrite Suite (or the entire mansion) at Casa Madrona Hotel & Spa in the upscale artistic enclave of Sausalito, California.

Of course, you could always order your bubbly at the trattoria next door, then retire to your stunning room or suite, there to find Victorian splendor in the Mansion or contemporary chic in the Hillside Cottages and Bayside Accommodations. Throughout, the amenities are ace, the style is sublime and the tech is high. Can there be any doubt that the champers-laden drones have appeared on the scene thanks to the close proximity of Silicon Valley?
